

Call for applications for Young Egyptian Academics in Greek, Coptic and Arabic papyrology

Seminar “Papyrology in Egypt. Religion in the Texts” at DAIK and IFAO, December 2nd 2017

The French Institute of Oriental Archaeology (IFAO) and the German Institute of Archaeology in Cairo (DAIK) are glad to announce the Third Seminar for Young Egyptian Academics in Greek, Coptic and Arabic papyrology, which will take place at both institutes, on 2 December 2017. This seminar will focus on “Religion in the papyri” and will be taught by Prof. Cornelia Römer (DAIK), Prof. Mohamed Elmaghrabi (University of Alexandria), Dr Esther Garel (IFAO), Prof. Maher Eisa (Fayoum University), Dr Khaled Younes (Sadat University / IFAO), Ahmad Nabil (Sadat University), Dr. Mahmoud El-Bokl (Helwan University).

The day will be divided into two parts :

9.30 AM -12.30 PM : Lectures in DAIK (see program)

13.15 PM Lunch in IFAO

14.30-17.30 PM : Workshops in IFAO, reading of Greek, Coptic or Arabic texts related to religion.

This seminar is exclusively conceived for Egyptian students currently preparing their Master or PhD degrees in Egypt. The number of participants is limited to 8 people in each language. Applications (in English), consisting of a cover letter and a CV which details the applicants’ education and command of foreign languages, ought to be sent before 22 November 2017 to the following contacts :

corneliaromer@rocketmail.com

egarel@ifao.egnet.net

khaledyounes2100@yahoo.com

For Greek papyrology, the successful applicants are expected to prove their ease with basic grammar of ancient Greek, their good command of English and confirmed knowledge of Graeco-Roman history.

For Coptic, the successful applicants are expected to prove their ease with basic grammar of Coptic, their good command of English and basic knowledge of the history of the Byzantine period.

For Arabic papyrology, the successful applicants are expected to prove their good command of English and good knowledge of the history of the early Islamic period.

The organising committee

Prof. Cornelia Römer (DAIK)

Prof. Nicolas Michel (IFAO)

Dr. Esther Garel (IFAO)

Dr. Khaled Younes (Sadat City University / IFAO)