THE STATIVE PARTICIPLE — AN ARABIC APPROACH TO EGYPTIAN GRAMMAR

Ahmad ABDEL-HAMID YOUSSEF

The Egyptian tongue, being of the Hamito-Semitic family, has shown and still affords — whenever there is chance of study — many affinities with its sister languages. Its affinities with Hebrew — to quote Prof. Bakir — are often acknowledged; but it is equally manifest that an affiliation with Arabic exists ⁽¹⁾.

The so-called pseudoparticiples or old perfectives described as a survival of the Semitic finite verb has retained a close resemblance noticed in particular to the Akkadian permansive. An important feature, to quote Gardiner ⁽²⁾, is that it can be used with passive as well as in active and that the time position it indicates depends upon the context ⁽³⁾. That is to say that the same form can give — regardless of time — the active meaning in some verbs and the passive in others.

This is strikingly the same with the Arabic Verbal form or rather Verbal measure فاعِل fa'īl and فاعُول fa'ūl a form which sometimes gives the meaning of, and is substituted by, the active participle or passive participle.

⁽¹⁾ Erman's comparison between his 'Pseudo-partizip' of which the Coptic qualitative is the latest form — and the Arabic perfective was based on a striking resemblance — he said — between the endings in both. But endings alone cannot be a decisive criterion for comparison. In meaning the «Stative participle» being essentially of a circumstantial nature qualifying a noun or a pronoun differs greatly from the Arabic perfect. As a matter of fact cannot be translated sami'tu 'I heard'; nor can the perfective passive be the correct or accepted translation for «I was sent» ursiltu. (See Erman, «Eine Neue Art der ägyptischer Konjugation», ZÄS 27' (1889), p. 65 ff.; cf. Lefebvre, Grammaire de l'Égyptien Classique, § 334).

⁽³⁾ Cf. T.W. Thacker, The Relationship of Semitic and Egyptian Verbal Systems Oxford (1954), p. 109.

	« I know »	علیم (انا) 'alīm = عالم 'ālim
	« he hears »	سمیع samī' = سامع sāmi'
	« I am sent »	رسول rasūl = مرسل mursal

With verbs of motion, the stative participle, as well as the Arabic fa'il-fa'ul measure, describes not as much the movement itself as the position reached of the movement.

	« I am descended »	نزیل (انا) nazil
	« sitting »	قعید ka'id

Furthermore, the stative participle and the Arabic fa'il-fa'ul measures, share the common feature of being frequent with adjective Verbs⁽¹⁾. A good deal of Arabic adjectives as a matter of fact is in the fa'il-fa'ul measure e.g.

	« great »	كبيرات kabirāt
	« wide »	وسیع wasi'
	« beautiful »	جميل jamil

In the following pages, we will find that the Arabic measure we bring forward for discussion applies well in all the uses of what we call the « stative participle » known as the pseudopart participle or old perfective.

The stative participle is used as a predicate to a nominal sentence :

« The mouth is silent » القم صموت (Pap. Prisse 4, 4).

« Old age is descended » (او هوئی) المشيب نزیل (Prisse 4, 2).

« The divine body is mixed with he who created him » جسد الاله أيش بخالقه (Simuhe, R 7-8).

« Thy son is shining upon thy throne » ولدك بدی (او جلی) (Book of the dead LXXVIII, 52).

(1) Cf. Gardiner, *Grammar*³, § 135; cf. 'His Majesty being (or is) great in the sight of the populace' see « Coronation of King Haremheb », I, 11, JEA 39 (1953), p. 13 ff.

«The field is come forth» الارض بروز (Pap. d'Orb. 16, 1).

«I am living» أنا حي (Orb. 16, 1).

«The bowman is ready» القواس عتيد (Admonitions 2, 2).

The nominal sentence with the stative participle as predicate can be introduced by 𓂏 or 𓂏 ; iw which serves to introduce some statement of outstanding interest (Gardiner³ § 117) can be translated in Arabic with the corroborative particle إن governing the subject in the accusative and the predicate in the nominative case Exx.

«Teti is satiated» ان تيتي شبيع (Pyr. § 551 c).

«I know» اني عليم (Coffin texts 247).

«I am appearing as Sokar» مثل سكر (متجلّ) اني جلتي (op. cit. 245).

«I am appearing as a divine falcon» اني بدى كبازا الهى (B.D. LXXVIII, L9).

«I am high, new and young» اني رفيع جديد نصير (B.D. XLIII, 3, 4).

«The scale is void of my sins» ان الميزان خلى من ذنوبي (B.D. CXXXII, 3).

𓂏 can be translated by the enunciative إذا الفجائية (إذا الفجائية) which denotes a thing's happening suddenly or unexpectedly, or one's experiencing the occurrence of a thing when he is in a particular state; it pertains only to nominal phrases :

«Then a ship is come as he fortold before» واذا سفينة أتتة كما تكهن قبلا

«Then I was gone and put myself on a high tree» واذا انا ذهب فوضعت نفسى على شجرة عالية (Shipwrecked sailor 154-156).

In these sentences, the Shipwrecked sailor in the rhetoric style of the story meant to say that he had found himself beholding a ship that was coming and found himself reacting by going and climbing a high tree. The serpent has expressed himself similarly in his own narrative :

« Then a star fell and those went into the fire by it

« Then I was (almost) dead for them »

(op. cit. 129-131). واذا نجم هوى وانطلق هؤلاء في النار واذا انا ميت عليهم

« Then the bull is standing » (Westcar 8, 26). واذا الثور وقيف

The independently used stative participle (Gardiner § 312) can be interpreted in Arabic Grammar terms as a predicate to an omitted subject understood to be « I ». Such an interpretation may have been the actual Egyptian conception of the stative participle; the fact that it developed so that it is only found in the first person singular, may suggest that the Egyptian of the Middle Kingdom disliked the omission of the subject qualified by the stative participle which henceforth required the support of a preceding pronoun suffixed or dependent.

« After we had gone to the great portal I was put to a magnificent prince palace »
(Sinuhe, B 285-6). فلما ان مشينا من بعد الى السدة الكبرى (اذا انا) ثوى في دار امير فخمة

« At dawn I had reached Peten stopping at an island in Kem-wer »
(Sinuhe, B 20-21). (Kem-wer was a part of Peten i.e. he reached Peten where the island was). فلما ان اضاءت الارض كنت قد بلغت بن هبيطا في جزيرة كور

« I was wealthy and I was great » (اذا انا) (كنت) غنيا عظيما أو (اذا انا) غنى عظيم
(Brit. Mus. 614).

« I was watchful concerning it day and night »
(Urk. IV, 185). حفيز عليها ليلا كالنهار

A similar rule applies to the exclamatory use (*Gardiner*³ § 313) of the stative participle :

بعيدا عنى او بعينى عنى « (be you) away from me »
(C.T. 236).

The Arabic analysis of such a case is that it is a predicate to the omitted imperative of the incomplete 'verb to be' كونا — كن which governs the subject in the nominative and the predicate in the accusative :

« beware of any occasion of neglectfulness »
حريصا ابدا من ضلال القلب (Prisse 154).

« in heath in heath good fellow to thy house »
سليما سليما ايها الصديق الى دارك (Sh. S. 158).

« praised thou art : I do not know the number thereof »
حميدا (Westcar 9, 2-3); and the well known formula « life, prosperity and health »
حيا صحيحا سليما .

Appended to a noun, the stative participle gives the meaning of an epithet or an Arabic adjective (Gardiner's virtual relative clause § 317).

« an old book boiled with oil »
كتاب قديم (Ebers 49, 1).

« a frog boiled with oil »
ضفدع طبخ في زيت (ib. 52, 4).

« a chariot wrought in gold »
عجلة حلية بالذهب (Urk. IV 663).

« the complete eye »
العين التيممة (Eb. 99, 20).

« sns-cake mixed with salt »
كعك خليط بالملح (Eb. 97, 19).

The circumstantial use of the stative participle is frequent :

« Teti found his throne empty »
وجد تيتي عرشه خليا (Pyr. 602).

𓆎𓆃𓆡𓆳𓆫𓆳 « ascending to heaven he mingled with the Gods »
 طليقا الى السماء اختلط بالالهة (Sinuhe, 7).

The stative participle stands as a predicate to a nominal sentence introduced by 𓆎 « to be » and other certain verbs denoting some duration of time e.g. 𓆎𓆩 « spend the night » بات, 𓆎𓆩𓆫 « spend the day » ظل. Such verbs are equivalent to the group of verbs known in Arabic as the incomplete verbs which govern the subject in the nominative and the predicate in the accusative case (see above); the predicate in this case qualifies the subject.

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « I shall be judged with him » له اكون غريمان له
 (Cairo 20458).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « Nay, he who is yonder shall be standing in the bark » ويكون الذى تم وقيفا فى السفين (Leb. 144).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « behold, he was fled » انظروا وكان فرورا (Gardiner³
 § 326; Pap. Kah. 34, 20).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « to me belonged the universe and I was alone » لى الكون وكنت وحيدا (ibid.; ÄZ, 54, 47).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « she spends the day lying hungry » تظل رقيدة خيصة
 (Pap. Kah. 5, 33).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « never does a man spend the night hungry in my town » لا يبيت رجل خيصة فى مدينتى (Mentew, II, cf. Lefebvre, Grammaire § 349).

As it is the case with the Arabic measures in question, the stative participle implies an emphatic meaning in certain cases. This can be noticed in the following versions of the same utterance in the coffin texts (B1 L and B3 L, Spell 220).

𓆎𓆩𓆫𓆫𓆫 « I known you; I am knowing your names » انا اعلمكم علم باسمائكم
 « I am knowing you; I am knowing your names » انى علم بكم علم باسمائكم

It can be thus understood, however, why in boastful and self laudatory texts, the stative participle is frequently used in the first person singular; the deceased asserts his knowledge and equipment of the requirements that allow him to the hereafter. It is not improbable that such a tradition was an important factor in the survival of the independent use of the stative participle in the first person singular.

Being of itself timeless, the future meaning was indicated in Middle Egyptian by placing the imperfective sdm.f of the verb wnn (to be) which has future reference, before it.

« Nay, he who is yonder shall be standing in the bark » « ويقفون في السفين (Leb. 143-4).

« His soul shall live beside the Lord of the Universe » « وتكون روحه حية الى جنب رب العالمين (Urk. IV 62).

Yet, the future meaning can be implied like our Arabic measure⁽¹⁾ in the following example in Middle Egyptian :

« Never shalt thou see this island (again) it becoming waves » « لن ترى تلك الجزيرة (ثانية) اذ هي صائرة امواجاً (Sh. S 154).

Two more late Egyptian examples of the stative participle give the future meaning :

« He took an oath by the lord saying, if all that I have said is not true, I shall be put on a stake » « اصدرقسما بالرب قائلاً لئن لم يصدق ما قلت جميعاً فاني موضوع (وديعة) على رأس قضيب (B.M. 10053, verso 3, 5; sim. ib. 4, 6).

(1) Arabic examples are frequents. Cf. « Verily thou shalt die and they shall die » (Koran XXXIX 30) « انك ميت وانهم ميتون وقلن تمتع ليلة النأى هذه فانك مرجوم غدا أو مسيف

« and they said enjoy this eve of departure; for you will be stoned tomorrow or slain by sword » (Ġirānu 'l-'Awd جران العود

Being the equivalent of the active or passive participle; the stative participle can be used substantively in some cases :

𓆎𓆏𓆐𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕𓆖𓆗𓆘𓆙𓆚𓆛𓆜𓆝𓆞𓆟 « I am the one-who-descended to the mines in the expedition of the sovereign » انا ذلك النزيل الى المناجم (Sh. S. 89).
في بعثة العاهل

According to Arabic grammar « ink » is the subject and h3k-wi comes in apposition to pw standing as predicate.

A final remark noticed, is that the stative participle — similar to Arabic still — could be used — though infrequent — without feminine endings. This was attested in the ‘Admonitions’ where the third masculine singular form applied to the feminine plural :

𓆎𓆏𓆐𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕𓆖𓆗𓆘𓆙𓆚𓆛𓆜𓆝𓆞𓆟 « The nomes are laid waste » المقاطعات حطيم (Adm. 3, 1).
𓆎𓆏𓆐𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕𓆖𓆗𓆘𓆙𓆚𓆛𓆜𓆝𓆞𓆟 « Foresooth, women are lacking » الا وان النساء قليل (Adm. 2, 4).
𓆎𓆏𓆐𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕𓆖𓆗𓆘𓆙𓆚𓆛𓆜𓆝𓆞𓆟 « Foresooth, all female slaves are free with their tongues » الا وان الاماء سليط بالسنتهن (Adm. 4, 13).
𓆎𓆏𓆐𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕𓆖𓆗𓆘𓆙𓆚𓆛𓆜𓆝𓆞𓆟 « Behold noble ladies are going hungry » انظر والنبيلات بعيد في الجوع (Adm. 9, 1); this refers us back to adjectives (Gardiner³ § 135).
