A Granite Statue Base of Ḥr-ỉr-ʿȝ (Cairo N 9107)
The monument under discussion is a grey rectangular granite base, currently housed in the basement of the Cairo Egyptian Museum, the provenance of which is unknown. It belongs to the court official Ḥr-ỉr-ʿȝ, surnamed Nfr-ỉb-Rʿ-nfr, known as the tutor of king Psammetichus II.¹

General Description

Registration Numbers: M 7273; N 9107
Dimensions: Length: 65 cm; Width: 35 cm; Height: 15 cm.

The base is rather well preserved. The statue which once stood upon it was removed out badly, causing some damage in the upper surface of the base. A hieroglyphic inscription is engraved around the base and on its upper surface, written between two framing lines, a feature well known for the sculpture of the 26th Dynasty. The style of the hieroglyphic signs and their shape are clear and delicate, as it is the case on most statues of the period.

The Inscriptions

Upper Surface of the Base

Two horizontal lines, beginning from the right, occupy the surface of the base just in front of the removed statue. Most of the first line had been scratched off as a result of the process of removing the statue.

imȝḫ(w) ḫr nswt bỉty Nfr-ỉb-Rʿ ⟦sȝ Rʿ Psmtk⟧

a. The sȝ Rʿ name of the king Psmtk² has to be restored in this defaced area.

b. The word rwyt appears at the end of Old Kingdom, as a new version for the old ‘rryt,’³ this term was connected with the official’s titles but it has no clear and defined meaning. imy-r rwyt could have the meaning of “overseer of the approach to a building/approach area to temple precinct”, and more likely “overseer of the gateway/entrance”.⁴ K. Piehl in his article on another monument of Ḫr-ỉr-ʿȝ translated this term as “the overseer of the warehouse”.⁵ K. Jansen-Winkeln in his comment on this title⁶ refers to its connection with the police and judicial administration. The title was carried by some of the senior officials of the Late Period;⁷ it can be translated here as “the overseer of the administration”, since the royal tutor has to be chosen among the administrative officials, who are well qualified to train the royal princes.⁸

⁷ For a list of these officials, see R. EL-SAYED, BIFAO 74, 1974, p. 34 (6). C.H. ROEHING, The Eighteenth Dynasty Titles Royal Nurse (mn’t nswt), Royal Tutor (mn’ nswt), and Foster Brother/Sister of the Lord of the Two Lands (sȝ nswt mn’ nb tsȝw), UMI Dissertation Services, 1990, p. 25-33.
c. Commonly used masculine name during the Late Period.⁹

d. Hor-ir-aa was contemporary with three kings of the 26th dynasty, Necho II [𓊕𓊫��], Psammetichus II [𓊕𓊦𓊫], and Apries [𓊕𓊩𓊫]. According to H. De Meulenaere,¹⁰ his “beautiful name” might have been Wḥm-ỉb-Rʿ-nfr under the reign of Necho II; he changed it for Nfr-ỉb-Rʿ-nfr under Psammetichus II, but, during the reign of Apries, he used only his main name without mentioning his ṛn nfr.¹¹

> ỉry-pʿ t bḥty-ꜣ ḫtmy bity smr wʿty ny mrwt ḫty nsut
> ʿnhwy bity e ẖḏr Mȝʿt ṭmr(y) nb.f ṭr nṯt m ṭb.f ẖmy-rȝ ṭrwjt Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ

Hereditary prince and governor, treasurer of the king of Lower Egypt, the sole and beloved companion, the eyes of the king of Upper Egypt and the ears of the king of Lower Egypt, the one who holds Maat, the beloved one of his lord, who acts according to his desire, the overseer of the ṭrwjt-administration, Hor-ir-aa.

e. For other examples dating from the New Kingdom, see R. el-Sayed, “À propos de la statue de Pasar CG 630 au musée du Caire”, BIFAO 80, 1980, p. 227 (l); dating from the Late Period, see U. Rössler-Köhler, Individuelle Haltungen zum ägyptischen Königtum der Spätzeit, GOF 21, 1991, p. 16-17, p. 45 (B3.2).

f. This epithet refers, in my opinion, to the role played by the official during the offering of Mȝʿt by the king in temples, probably responsible for carrying the divine figure of the goddess Mȝʿt. There are only eight cases known till now for non-royal individuals who hold and present a figure of the goddess Mȝʿt in ancient Egyptian art.¹²

The text is continued facing the right side, but the signs here are taller and slender:

His Majesty ordered to erect the statues of the everlasting statues called the kings' statues, in order to be not far from my beloved master. I was His Majesty's companion in every place because he loves me, the tutor.

g. twt: this is the archaic word for the statue of a god, a king, or an official, made of any material.\(^1\) From the New Kingdom onwards, it could also refer to a block statue\(^4\) or a cult statue of the king.\(^5\) In the New Kingdom, this term is used here to describe a certain type of temple statue; according to the text they will be placed behind the king's statues. This term (dtyw) is mentioned only once in Pyramid Texts: \[^{16}\] Here the word is a title as it appears on other monuments of Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ as rnn nb tȝwy or with different parallel words such as šdỉ nswt, mnʿ bỉty; these three titles refer to the function of tutor of the royal child.\(^2\)

When the king himself saw these statues in front of them, as a holy image, he ordered to pour water before the Majesty of the Horus Menekh-ib, as much as he rewarded me in my place (=my office) more than anyone. Earlier, His Majesty appointed me as a chief who commands those who were witnesses, while coming after giving the road to the people (=direct them through the ceremony).

k. hr.sn: I think the suffix pronoun refers to the gods’ statues or royal figures erected in the temple, where our base had once been.

l. šsm: form or figure, it refers in general to the god’s image.25

m. Horus name of Psammetichus II.

n. Only the left part of the sign ĥs is still preserved. We may also note that the writing of the dependant pronoun as represents the Old Egyptian writing of this pronoun.26

o. Graphic transposition between the signs | and ← for aesthetic reasons.

p. m dwȝt: adverb of time meaning “early” or “in the morning”, the damaged part was probably occupied by the determinative ○.27 It is noticeable, that during the Late Period it is common to replace some signs by others, especially ○ by δ.28

q. rdi m hr n: an expression found since the Middle Egyptian, with the meaning of “to command someone”.29
Back Side of the Base

ḥm.f bꜣt-ḥr.sn sw repreh kꜣw.f hr bꜣ n bꜣk
m swpꜣ fnpwt.f ḏt ṛḥh m nswt bity

His Majesty <stood> before them (=the royal statues) and glorified his kꜣw, near the bꜣ of the humble, lengthening his years for ever, as king of Upper and Lower Egypt.

r. sw repreh: the verb sw repreh means “to adore/worship by using a praise formula”.30 It usually has a determinative in the form of a standing person in a gesture of adoration ⟨⟩ (A 30).31 It is always connected with other words expressing worship such as “dw repreh”, which is not mentioned in this text.32 I believe that the king starts to glorify his own statues so that the statue of Ḥr-ỉr-ʿȝ, which is placed nearby, will also benefit from the favour of the god.

s. hr bꜣ n bꜣk: as the bꜣ is “the personification of vital forces… of the deceased”, it can be considered that the ceremony performed before the statue of Ḥr-ỉr-ʿȝ will help his bꜣ “to come into existence”.33 The preposition  means here “near”.34 The official wants to focus on the existence of his statue and secondly he lays stress on the great benefit he will get as a result of its excellent position.

t. swpꜣ fnpwt: The expression is well known, meaning “to make prosperous years”.35 The regular writing of the verb since Middle Kingdom is ⟨⟩, with the meaning of “to endure”, “to lengthen”.36

To sum up our comments, we can notice that the text mostly relies on Old and Middle Egyptian in writing as well as orthography, that the determinatives in most cases are omitted, that signs are replaced by others. All these features are characteristic of the Egyptian writing in the Late Period,37 more specially of the archaism, which prevailed in art, writing and language in the time of the Kushite and Saite Dynasties.38

Provenance

The provenance of the base is questionable, one could assume that it comes from one of the numerous sanctuaries where Twenty-Sixth Dynasty material was found, for example Saïs, the dynastic chief city, or Memphis where Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ has already left some monuments.39

K. Jansen-Winkeln40 registered the discovered monuments of Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ; we can add a monument published by O. Perdu, leading to the following list:

According to the above table, Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ has seven statues discovered at various sites. Two of them represent the owner presenting a naos, one shows Hr-ỉr-ʿȝ standing, another one kneeling with a space before his feet for the inscriptions like the base under consideration. Four of the six statues were certainly discovered in temples.

39 About the architectural activity of the kings of the Twenty-Sixth Dynasty and particularly Psammetichus II, see D. Arnold, Temples of the last Pharaohs, Oxford, 1999, p. 74-92.

This statue quite certainly dates back to the reign of King Psammetichus II. As for the type of the statue, which once stood upon this base, one can conclude that, it is most probably a kneeling statue of Ḥr-ỉr-ʿȝ, holding a divine symbol or bearing a naos with a god or a goddess figure, like Cairo CG 807 and Cairo CG 658 belonging to the same owner. According to the text inscribed on the base, it has been erected in a temple together with statues of King Psammetichus II. The text also explains how Horiraa, as a royal tutor, was respected and loved by this king.
