

BULLETIN DE L'INSTITUT FRANÇAIS D'ARCHÉOLOGIE ORIENTALE

en ligne en ligne

BIFAO 57 (1958), p. 203-213

Jaroslav Cerny

Some Coptic Etymologies III.

Conditions d'utilisation

L'utilisation du contenu de ce site est limitée à un usage personnel et non commercial. Toute autre utilisation du site et de son contenu est soumise à une autorisation préalable de l'éditeur (contact AT ifao.egnet.net). Le copyright est conservé par l'éditeur (Ifao).

Conditions of Use

You may use content in this website only for your personal, noncommercial use. Any further use of this website and its content is forbidden, unless you have obtained prior permission from the publisher (contact AT ifao.egnet.net). The copyright is retained by the publisher (Ifao).

Dernières publications

9782724711523	Bulletin de liaison de la céramique égyptienne 34	Sylvie Marchand (éd.)
9782724711707	????? ?????????? ?????? ??? ?? ????????	Omar Jamal Mohamed Ali, Ali al-Sayyid Abdelatif
????? ??? ?? ??????? ?????? ?? ??????? ?????????? ????????????
????????? ??????? ?????? ?? ?????? ?? ??? ?????? ????????
9782724711400	Islam and Fraternity: Impact and Prospects of the Abu Dhabi Declaration	Emmanuel Pisani (éd.), Michel Younès (éd.), Alessandro Ferrari (éd.)
9782724710922	Athribis X	Sandra Lippert
9782724710939	Bagawat	Gérard Roquet, Victor Ghica
9782724710960	Le décret de Saïs	Anne-Sophie von Bomhard
9782724710915	Tebtynis VII	Nikos Litinas
9782724711257	Médecine et environnement dans l'Alexandrie médiévale	Jean-Charles Ducène

SOME COPTIC ETYMOLOGIES III<sup>(1)</sup>

BY

JAROSLAV ČERNÝ

1. S. ΒΛΕΜΥΩΣ, B. ΒΛΕΜΥΩΩΣ, «Blemys» (38 b)<sup>(2)</sup> = * Brhm.

Mentions of the formidable nomads Bλέμυες in the Egyptian language of pre-Coptic times are not numerous<sup>(3)</sup>. Griffith<sup>(4)</sup> was the first to find a Singular  in a document of 152 B. C. which he read Blhn (?). The last sign or group of signs before the determinative  seemed uncertain and he hesitated between reading n or s. It was only later<sup>(5)</sup> that he recognized that this last group is to be read  and the whole name  after he had encountered another example in Plural  in Pap.

Dodgson, I. 21<sup>(6)</sup>. Spiegelberg adduced  from Dem.

Pap. Hauswaldt no. 6, I. 1<sup>(7)</sup>, and suggested that the group  Brhrm(t) of the Dem. Pap. Rylands IX, 5, 5, concealed the ethnic Blemys<sup>(8)</sup>; the photograph<sup>(9)</sup> indeed seems to admit of his reading. Since Pap. Rylands

<sup>(1)</sup> See Coptic Studies in Honor of Walter Ewing Crum, pp. 35-47; Ägyptologische Studien Hermann Grapow zum 70. Geburtstag gewidmet, 30-7.

<sup>(2)</sup> This figure in headings refers to the pages and columns of Crum's A Coptic Dictionary.

<sup>(3)</sup> Some have been collected by KIRWAN, Annals of Arch. and Anthropology XXIV, 76, n. 1, and Oxford University Excavations at Firka, 46.

<sup>(4)</sup> Cat. of the Rylands Papyri III, 271, n. 18. and 420.

<sup>(5)</sup> PSBA XXXI [1909], 291.

<sup>(6)</sup> Loc. cit., pl. XI; cf. pp. 105 and 291. According to Griffith (loc. cit., 102) the papyrus is of «a middle date in the Ptolemaic age», that is of about 180 B. C.

<sup>(7)</sup> Die dem. Papyri Hauswaldt [1913], p. 22 and n. 3; pl. 10. The date of the papyrus is 220/19 B. C.

<sup>(8)</sup> GRIFFITH, Cat. of the Rylands Papyri, II, pl. 23; Griffith's reading and interpretation was different, see loc. cit. III, 225, n. 10.

<sup>(9)</sup> GRIFFITH, loc. cit. I, pl. XXVII.

IX is dated in the reign of Darius I (522-485 B. C.), this would be by far the earliest mention of Blemyes who appear in Greek sources only since the time of Theocritus<sup>(1)</sup> (3rd century B. C.). The importance of the Demotic spellings is considerable, for they discourage any further attempt at an Egyptian etymology of the name of Blemyes which the Coptic forms S. بَلْمَيْسَ, B. بَلْمَيْسَوْرَ (and variants) seemed to invite<sup>(2)</sup>.

It has been overlooked that there is also a clear hieroglyphic example of Brhm in the name of the female owner of the Book of the Dead written in hieroglyphs on a papyrus at Turin<sup>(3)</sup>. She was called , T-brhmt, «The (female) Blemyes», therefore a feminine counterpart of the Demotic male name , Blhm(t), «Blemyes», which H. Thompson quoted to Griffith from a Demotic ostracon<sup>(4)</sup>, there not preceded by the definite article. The date of the Book of the Dead of T-brhmt has not been stated and is probably difficult if not impossible to fix owing to the uncertainty which still hovers over the palaeography and history of the Book of the Dead, but we are certainly not far off the mark if we guess at the second half of Ptolemaic or early Roman period as its date.

Two other early references which have been claimed for Blemyes, however, are doubtful owing to the absence of the last consonant m of the name.

Gauthier<sup>(5)</sup> wondered whether  of the Onomasticon of Amenōpe (4, 9) did not designate Blemyes and considered changing the  into  in the transcription of the hieratic text. This, as the photograph published since<sup>(6)</sup> shows, is unjustified,  being well preserved and beyond doubt. Gardiner, it is true, changed his earlier reading  into , but this latter is equally doubtful, and  might have stood there after all<sup>(7)</sup>.

<sup>(1)</sup> Idyll VII, v. 114; see SETHE, Blemyes in PAULY-WISSOWA, Real-Encyclopädie III, 566.

<sup>(2)</sup> So still in 1910 to W. MAX MÜLLER, Egyptol. Researches II, 69 ff.

<sup>(3)</sup> Cat. no. 1816 (FABRETTI-ROSSI-LANZONE, Regio Museo di Torino, p. 222).

<sup>(4)</sup> At the University of Toronto, D. 169, unfortunately not included in GARDINER-THOMP-SON-MILNE, Theban Ostraca, but see GRIFFITH, PSBA XXXI, 291.

<sup>(5)</sup> Dict. géogr. II, 3-4.

<sup>(6)</sup> GARDINER, Ancient Egyptian Onomastica, pl. X.

<sup>(7)</sup> GARDINER, loc. cit. I, p. 212*, does not of course envisage the identity of Brhs, as he now reads the name, with Blemyes.

The other instance is  of a hieroglyphic stela of the Ethiopian king Anlamani<sup>(1)</sup>, who is thought to have been contemporary with the Egyptian XXVIth Dynasty. Macadam<sup>(2)</sup> admits the possibility of this name being identical with that of Blemyes.

In fact, the lack of the final m in both these cases need not necessarily stand in the way of the identification. In both the country of Blemyes and not the inhabitants themselves are meant, while all the later instances quoted above refer to single persons. For all we know the final m might have been a native ending to form names of people from names of countries. This is, of course, a pure guess, for of the language of the Blemyes nothing has come down to us except for a few personal names.

2. Mani μ&τεστε, «army» (not in Grum's dictionary) — Demotic mtgt, «military camp, army».

From Manichaean Homilies Polotsky collected a number of new words<sup>(3)</sup> for which he promised to supply references and etymologies (as far as these were known to him) in the index. Since to my knowledge neither has the index appeared nor have etymologies of most of the new words been pointed out elsewhere, I may be permitted to record in these Notes one which is apparent at the first sight. Mani μ&τεστε, «army»<sup>(4)</sup>, is the Demotic feminine mtgt or mtkt of the same meaning<sup>(5)</sup>. Liddbarski<sup>(6)</sup> confirmed an earlier suggestion by W. Max Müller<sup>(7)</sup> that the word was a loan-word from Semitic, proposing a derivation from Assyrian madaktu, «military camp».

<sup>(1)</sup> MACADAM, The Temples of Kawa I, pls. 15 and 16.

<sup>(2)</sup> Loc. cit. I, p. 49, n. 37.

<sup>(3)</sup> POLOTSKY, Manichaean Homilies, p. xix.

<sup>(4)</sup> References from the Manichaean Psalms are indexed in ALLBERRY, A Manichaean Psalm-book, Part II, p. 16*. A rapid perusal of Polotsky's Manich. Homilies revealed only one example 20, 10.

<sup>(5)</sup> ERICHSEN, Dem. Glossar, 193. Some

references are : Rosetta Decree, l. 7 and Hnd. Philae Decree, l. 8 (both in SPIEGELBERG, Der demot. Text... von Kanopus und Memphis, p. 135, no. 164); SPIEGELBERG, Der Sagenkreis des Königs Petubastis, p. 28*, no. 179; Pap. Erbach, l. 3 (= ZÄS 42, pl. III); Serapeum Stela, no. 110 (= ZÄS 57, 69).

<sup>(6)</sup> ZÄS 55 [1918], 93.

<sup>(7)</sup> OLZ 4 [1901], col. 319-320.

The meanings of the Demotic and Assyrian words did not quite agree, but this sole obstacle to the identification was removed, when the Demotic word was also found, though masculine in this case, with the meaning "camp" <sup>(1)</sup>.

3. B. սայր, "box for incense" (206a) = սայրա, mhyr, "a basket."

Many years ago Dr. Keimer presented me with a limestone ostracon<sup>(2)</sup> of Ramesside date which in two lists of objects contained two mentions of                                                  <img alt="Egyptian hieroglyph for a basket, consisting of

<sup>1)</sup> SPIEGELBERG in Griffith Studies, 176-7,

<sup>(2)</sup> Published in CERNY-GARDINER, Hieratic Ostraca, pl. LXI, 3.

(<sup>2</sup>) Nkr accompanies mndm, though not yet Urk. IV, 762, 5 and 763, 8, almost always in Ramesside lists on ostraca and papyri, e. g. several times on ostr. Brit. Mus. 5630 (= Inscr. in the Hierat. and Demotic Character, pl. XIX); ostr. Gardiner 6, 3; ostr. Petrie 17, 7; ostr. Berlin 1421<sup>1</sup>, vo. 9-10; etc.

<sup>(4)</sup> Published in Inscr. in the Hierat. and Dem. Character, pl. XXVIII; transcription in ČERNÝ-GARDINER, Hieratic Ostraca, pl. LXXXV, 1. The end of inhyr is lost there, but the ostracon supplies the initial  which is in a lacuna in the Pap. Cairo J. 86637.

<sup>(5)</sup> See ASAE 43 [1943], 179; ibidem, p. 174 other writings of the month-name Mekhir.

<sup>(6)</sup> GARDINER, Ancient Egyptian Onomastica I, p. 95*, no. 211.

masticon of Amenope. As for the meaning of  Gardiner conjectured «buyer (?)», since the word is found among occupations; it has been compared with Hebr. , «price», which again sounds like , the Aramaic form of Mekbir<sup>(1)</sup>. The possibility of an influence by , hbrw, «street», cannot be entirely excluded, since this word, though written quite differently, must have been pronounced **hīr* as its Coptic descendant  shows. In view of all these possibilities it is therefore better to be resigned to determining the original meaning of p; mbyr in the month-name until ampler evidence becomes available. The festival and month gave the name to the receptacle  which was probably a prominent object used at the festival. A good parallel to such a development is the case of the vase  k3-hr-k3, kusihku in cuneiform transcription, which like  also served for measuring incense<sup>(2)</sup> and received its name from the festival and month of Khoiakh. This was originally a funerary festival called   nhb-k3w, «Uniting the ka's», so that k3-hr-k3 meant «ka [was] upon ka»<sup>(3)</sup>. Another possible case of an object receiving its name from a festival or month name is  ipip, «ein Gerät aus Alabaster» (Wb. I, 69, 2) which seems clearly connected with the month-name   <sup>(4)</sup>, Ipip, a later form of  Ipt-hmt<sup>(5)</sup>. The origin of Ipip is obscure: it is perhaps nothing more than the late form  Ipip (Wb. I, 69, 3) of the name of the old goddess  Ipy (Wb. I, 68, 8.9) interpreted eventually as the hippopotamus-goddess Toëris and identified at Thebes with the goddess  Ipt (Wb. I, 68, 7). The alabaster object  being thus connected with the goddess Toëris, we may perhaps see in it a designation for libation or purification basins or bowls from which water was

<sup>(1)</sup> Cf. ASAE 43, 177.

<sup>(2)</sup> Pap. Harris 36 a, 6.

<sup>(3)</sup> See GARDINER, ZÄS 43 [1906], 139.

<sup>(4)</sup> Wb. I, 69, 4; ASAE 43, 175.

<sup>(5)</sup> This is the correct transcription in Pap.

Ebers list instead of  which figures in Wb. I, 68, 11, and all publications except in Gardiner's article, ZAS 43 [1906], 141

(though  are provided with queries) and in PARKER, Calendars of Ancient Egypt, p. 38, fig. 16. The reading is confirmed by  of the astronomical ceiling in the tomb of Senenmût (WINLOCK, Excavations at Deir el Bahri 1911-1931, pl. 66), and  in Ramesseum (Revue d'ég. 10, pl. 1). A later expanded form was Ipt-hm.s., see Wb. I, 66, 21; JNES 7, pl. VIII, 1. 13.

taken and poured on the ground, as an offering to this goddess<sup>(1)</sup>. Most of these basins are inscribed with a htp-di-nsw-prayer to Toëris whom the basin Brit. Mus. [28] calls  «Toëris, the pure water»<sup>(2)</sup>. It is, however, fair to say that the preserved basins are not made of alabaster, but of less precious stones, limestone, sandstone or basalt.

4. S. ȝopt, «awning, veil» (588 b) =  ȝ, brd, «a garment.»

Brugsch<sup>(3)</sup> identified ȝopt with brt in  w<sup>c</sup> brt n ss(-n)-nsw, «a brt of byssus», of I Kham. 4, 19<sup>(4)</sup> and Erichsen<sup>(5)</sup> compared it with  ȝ, srt, some kind of cloth (Wb. IV, 524, 8-11). It is impossible to contradict this latter identification, for srt is a word occurring only in the texts of Graeco-Roman period; the nature of its final t is obscure, but if it were meant to be the feminine ending the identification would be, of course, impossible. There is, however, a much older word  ȝ, brd (Wb. III, 331, 2), which occurs twice in Wenamūn<sup>(6)</sup> and is a cloth (hbs) made of «good Upper Egyptian» material. This escaped Macadam<sup>(7)</sup> when he was considering several examples of a word which must be the same. In Ethiopian hieroglyphic stelae from Kawa we find :

Stela no. III, l. 2 (Tabarka) :  ȝ (pl. 5 and 6);

l. 9 :  ȝ (loc. cit.);

Stela no. VI, l. 5 (Taharka) :  ȝ (pl. 11 and 12);

Stela no. IX, l. 59 (Aman-Nête-yerike) :  ȝ (pl. 19 and 24);

l. 69 :  ȝ (loc. cit.).

<sup>(1)</sup> See BRUYÈRE, Rapport sur les fouilles de Deir el Médineh (1929), pp. 20-2 and fig. 2.

<sup>(2)</sup> Published by BRUYÈRE, loc. cit., p. 21-2. Not mentioned by Bruyère is the libation bowl Brit. Mus. [465], A Guide to the Egyptian Galleries (Sculpture), p. 181, no. 651.

<sup>(3)</sup> Hierogl.-dem. Wörterbuch, 1132.

<sup>(4)</sup> See ERICHSEN, Dem. Glossar, 367, for the word. Other examples are Dem. mag. Pap. 6, 43; Petubastis 7, 12 (also of «byssus»), twice in Apis Ritual (v. BERGMANN, Hieratische und hieratisch-démotische Texte, pl. XIV, 1).

<sup>(5)</sup> ERICHSEN, Dem. Glossar, 367. LEXA, Grammaire démotique, p. 87, no. 16, quotes as its hieroglyphic ancestor a word  ȝ; this is unknown to Wb. and I am unable to find where it is drawn from.

<sup>(6)</sup> 2, 40 and 42.

<sup>(7)</sup> MACADAM, Kawa I, p. 9, n. 7.

In the first and last example the material of which hrd was made is stated to be pšk and ssr-nsw<sup>(1)</sup>, in the rest the material is not given. Thus whenever the material of the hrd is indicated<sup>(2)</sup> it is of fine quality and both in Wenamūn and the Kawa stelae the word might well have designated a veil as ωορτ sometimes does.

It is hardly necessary to mention that the phonetic correspondence between hrd and ωορτ is perfect; the final η of Wenamūn and τ of Kawa stelae nos. III and VI cannot represent anything else than a t since the passage of d into t had long ago taken place<sup>(3)</sup>.

5. S. ωοε-, οε-, component of a place-name (618 b) = ΠΙΛΛΑΙ, sg, «hill (?)».

Only one place-name containing this element is known in Coptic : π(ε)ωοε- νοε or νεστωοε, «the ωοε (or οε) of Pohe». Ποε itself derives from ΧΑΙΡΙΠΩΗ, pš ihy, «the camp»; which Pohe, however, is meant here is impossible to say for two localities of this name are known, and several others with a differentiating genitive following<sup>(4)</sup>. But ωοε- or οε- is clearly the same word as ΠΙΛΛΑΙ (with variants), sg, contained in the name of no less than seven (possibly eight) places in Pap. Wilbour. In discussing these Gardiner has suggested<sup>(5)</sup> that the word sg is identical with ΠΙΛΛΗ, sgr, previously known from Pap. Anastasi V, 19, 7 in the expression «sgr

<sup>(1)</sup> It is not necessary to assume, as Macadam does, that hrd in these two cases is a measure in which various garments are measured. In III, 2, pš is the material and refers to the following four words (hrd, śndt, rwd, mnht) which all designate garments; IX, 59 is simply «8 hrd-garments (made) of byssus» and not «8 hrd-measures of byssus».

<sup>(2)</sup> Among Demotic examples I Kham. and Apis Ritual mention ss-nsw as the material of hrd.

<sup>(3)</sup> Probably before M. K. according to SETHE, ZÄS 50 [1912], 97.

<sup>(4)</sup> See GAUTHIER, Dict. géogr. I, p. 100-102.

<sup>(5)</sup> The Wilbour Papyrus II, Commentary, p. 35. The eight places are listed by FAULKNER, The Wilbour Papyrus IV, 88; one or two can be added from GAUTHIER, Dict. géogr. V, 67-68. Incidentally, Pi-sg-n'r «The sg of n'r-tree» is the correct name (we are evidently in the Heracleopolite nome which had the n'r-tree as its ensign), misinterpreted as «The sg of n'r-fish» under Shoshenk I (GAUTHIER, l. c.). The genitival n has been omitted before the following n'r.

of Ikwr<sup>(1)</sup>. This sgr, as well as sg, has been translated as «keep, fortress», but is sg not really the old word  sgr, known as a place-name alone or in compositions since the Old Kingdom and the First Intermediate Period<sup>(2)</sup>? For this latter word the meaning «hill» is guaranteed by its determinative  representing the slope of a hill and the strange sign  which invariably accompanies the sg of the New Kingdom may through misinterpretation originate in this . As determinative this  might have been provided in hieratic with two side strokes to distinguish it from  = k<sup>(3)</sup>, and finally given origin to <sup>(4)</sup>. The word sgr of Anastasi V would then be a quite different word in its spelling, meaning («fortress») and origin (a loan-word from )<sup>(5)</sup>. If the author of an inscription writes in the XXIIInd Dynasty   besides  <sup>(6)</sup>, he may be confusing sg with sgr, but the  of the first spelling indicates that no r was pronounced at the end. The etymology here advocated reveals  as the original form, while in  the s changed into  before <sup>(7)</sup>.

6. S. , B. , A.  «hair» (623a) =                      <img alt="Egyptian hieroglyph of a lock of hair" data-bbox deduced from the Demotic form  of Dem. mag. pap.<sup>(1)</sup> recognized by Hess<sup>(2)</sup>. The word contained a 'ayyin and was therefore dissyllabic (*fō'ey) as postulated by the Bohairic and Fayyūmic forms<sup>(3)</sup>.

7. A.                  <img alt="Demotic character for '

besides , Late Egyptian  tbw (Wb. V, p. 363, 11 f.), another expression, namely hmxw-tbw, lit. «shoe-craftsman», attested in the Plural in a Cairo XIXth Dyn. hieratic ostracaon<sup>(1)</sup> :         This would be in Coptic S. **gau-tooye*, B. **gau-ewori*, which could be shortened into S. gau, B. gou, lit. «craftsman» when there was no danger of misunderstanding as to which kind of craftsman was meant.

10. S.A.F.  : B.  gau, «hand» (839 b) =        kd(t), «hand».

The Demotic ancestor of  was identified by Brugsch as long ago as 1855<sup>(2)</sup>; it is the feminine word  gyd or  kyd occurring five times in the Dem. Magical Papyrus<sup>(3)</sup> and elsewhere<sup>(4)</sup>. As far as earlier periods are concerned Spiegelberg was able to adduce<sup>(5)</sup> a       gd, quoted to him by Steindorff in the (feminine?) proper name         ndm-gd, «one with tender hand» of a New Kingdom stela<sup>(6)</sup>. The authors of the Wb. did not admit this word gd, presumably because they felt some doubt as to its real existence. Its authenticity, however, should not be doubted, for the expression  «your two hands» of the Pap. Louvre 3129, 50 is translated into Late Egyptian as         try.k kd zt by Pap. Brit. Mus. 10252<sup>(7)</sup>. These papyri are as late as the second half of the IVth century B. C., but the bridge to the N. K. example of the Leipzig stela is supplied again by a divine decree, Pap. Turin Cat. 1984, vo. 20-21, to which I. E. S. Edwards drew my attention. There the deities promise               *We will make healthy her right hand and her left hand». In the enumeration of the parts of body kd is placed between drt, «hand», and ksp «hollow of the hand», it was therefore in the XXIInd Dynasty not quite synonymous with drt as the meaning of  might lead us to believe.*

<sup>(1)</sup> Cat. 25581, verso 3-4; see CERNÝ, Ostraca hiératiques (CGC), 52* and pl. XLII.

<sup>(2)</sup> Grammaire démotique, p. 28, § 56, and p. 73, § 159.

<sup>(3)</sup> See GRIFFITH-THOMPSON, Demotic Magical Papyrus III, p. [85], no. 905.

<sup>(4)</sup> E. g. SPIEGELBERG, ZÄS 53 [1917], 123.

n. 5; ERICHSEN, Dem. Glossar, 595.

<sup>(5)</sup> Kopt. Handwörterbuch, 282, n. 12.

<sup>(6)</sup> Leipzig, no. 122; see RANKE, Die äg. Personennamen I, 215, 20, who prints

<sup>(7)</sup> SCHOTT, Urk. VI, p. 83, 6.

POSTSCRIPT

S. Sauneron kindly draws my attention to the following passage of the paper L'Egypte et le Vocabulaire de Balzac et de Th. Gautier, read by G. Lefebvre in the Académie des Inscriptions at the session of 16th November 1945<sup>(1)</sup> :

« C'est également dans Champollion que Gautier a trouvé le terme bizarre «amschir», qui revient six fois au cours du roman, particulièrement dans ces deux passages : «Des prêtres, se retournant à intervalles égaux, allongeaient vers lui leurs amschirs après avoir jeté de l'encens sur les charbons allumés dans la petite coupe de bronze... , et marchaient respectueusement à reculons pendant que la fumée odorante et bleue montait aux narines du triomphateur» (p. 107). Et plus loin, Pharaon s'écrie : «Lorsque je passe sur mon char d'or ou dans ma litière..., les prêtres m'encensent avec la fumée des amschirs» (p. 207). Ce terme est donc synonyme d'encensoir. Et c'est en effet la définition qu'en donne Champollion dans la Notice<sup>(2)</sup> (p. 69). »

The etymology which Lefebvre offers for amschir is ingenious but can hardly be upheld. It is quite clear that Champollion's amschir is Coptic መግሮ (n° 3 above). Crum's dictionary knows the word only from Kircher and this probably was also Champollion's source. If the word designated a censer, and consequently an object made of metal, it could not, of course, be a direct descendant of mhyr, which is a basket, but that both መግሮ and mhyr are derived from the name of the month remains — I believe — indubitable.

<sup>(1)</sup> CRAIBL 1945, 565.

<sup>(2)</sup> Notice descriptive des monuments égyptiens du Musée Charles X (Paris, 1827) is meant.