

Environments and societies during the Greco-Roman period in Egypt

Organisation: Ninon Blond and Maël Crépy at the Ifao (Cairo)

9h30-9h45 - Welcoming coffee

9h45-10h - Welcoming of the participants and opening of the workshop by Abbès Zouache, director of the studies of the Ifao

10h - Introduction by Ninon Blond and Maël Crépy

10h15 - Laura Aguer: “The Ptolemaic ostraca from Bi'r Samut: a window on the organization of a society in the desert”

10h45 - Amr Saleem, Mariam Yehia, Nick Marriner, Abdelmoniem Mahmoud, Mathieu Giaime, Sahar Abd El Bakey, Christophe Morhange: “Holocene evolution of the Myos Hormos anchorage, Red Sea Coast, Egypt”

11h15 - First discussion

11h25 - Coffee break

11h40 - Anna-Katharina Rieger and Thomas Vetter: “From the Mediterranean coast to the Quattara Depression: How landscape archaeological approaches help to unlock settlement, runoff agricultural and mobility patterns in ancient Marmarica”

12h10 - Joachim Le Bomin: “When an archaeologist meets a geomorphologist for the first time: the example of Taposiris Magna”

12h40 - Second discussion

12h50 - Lunch break

14h30 - Gaëlle Tallet: “A rural village facing climatic pulsations (5th c. BC-5th c. AD): a methodological approach developed in El-Deir, Kharga oasis”

15h00 - Giulia Nicatore “Reconstructing the western alluvial plain in Luxor through different data: an environmental re-assessment of demotic topographical terms”

15h30 - Third discussion

15h45 - Coffee break

16h - Conclusive remarks

Funding and support :

